Warrior Cats questions/theories

calmhawk91

I have a few questions about Warriors, that maybe people have answers/theories for. Feel free to answer one or add on!

- Do a leader's nine lives only get lost by dying from battle or sickness? Or do they die from old age as well? Because lots of warriors live longer than their leaders

- Can kits be named after another clan cat that's alive? (what if they both become leaders?)

- Moons are months, right? Though I feel like it should take longer than six months to become a warrior.

@dellow I will try to answer these questions to my best ability.

The nine lives: though it is possible they only lose lives from battle or ailments, if old age ends them, it might likely take all their lives. That, or they retire as an elder, and give back their spare lives (didn't a leader do this, actually?)

names: same prefixes and suffixes are very common, so cat's with the same names might have occurred at least once. Likely they'd be from another clan though.

Moons: yes, moons are months. But please note, when a cat is half a year old, it will be almost as big as a normal, full adult cat. They might've already reached near full maturity by then.

Actually, the nine lives thing is not fully accurate. Due to the perilous nature of the warrior cats life, cats rarely die of old age, and leaders are the most vulnerable, due to having lives to spare. The leaders are first in battle and get hurt or sick more often, because reasons. There is no case of a leader retiring to the elder's den, as it seems the job of being a leader is for life (Prophecies Begin, Brokenstar drama). There was one time in the Vision of Shadows arc where a leader gave up their lives voluntarily, but this was because he felt unfit to leave, and it was obviously unprecedented, as in the next book Starclan is arguing among themselves and they specifically say that a leader has never given up their lives in that way before. Thank you for coming to my TEDtalk.

Also Pinestar. He wanted to be a kittypet instead.

Pinestar was already on his last life, and he chose to spend it as a kittypet instead of leading his Clan.

Well, when kittens reach six months, they only start their training, but I believe it was mentioned a few times that they usually become warriors at 12 months, when they're fully grown

Also, Is Scourge Firestar's brother? If Quince is his mom, and in The Rise Of Scourge she talks to a portrait of a cat with ginger fur, and Jake is Firestar's dad and always loved Quince, then...?
